West Dressed: Fashions Inspired by the American Frontier

Presented by the Texas Fashion Collection at the University of North Texas

Level One between Neiman Marcus and Dillard's | April 13-June 17

The landscape of the American West looms large in our imaginations, with tall tales, spaghetti westerns, and other forms of visual culture creating a fantastical and idealized view of the past. Fashion designers often explore these tropes, shaping, reinforcing, and challenging contemporary ideas through their own interpretations of popular history. Drawn from the holdings of the Texas Fashion Collection at the University of North Texas, this exhibition presents American, Native American and international fashion designers whose work encourages us to think more deeply about our own ideas of this larger-than-life past.
